He's not one to shy away from big ideas, crafting them into beautifully intricate work with strong narratives and a striking aesthetic. Henry's hustle across the music and culture sectors has led to him having a unique and varied portfolio of both still and moving image work.

... blurring genres to create documentaries that feel larger than life, narrative work that feels intimately real, music videos that feel like dreams, photos that feel like they'll last a lifetime.

Henry's talent as a writer allows him to explore concepts in unexpected ways, creating well-researched, heartfelt films that surprise at every turn. His attention to detail and ability to bring the best out of any performer make sure the execution is always on par with the idea.

Given his background in music videos and branded content, Henry is adept at working quickly and efficiently, yet the cinematic scope of his work lends itself to more involved, longform projects.

Who said you can't "WRITE" a documentary?

I don't even know your last name

You will.

There are some colours you can only see before the sunrise.

I wouldn't start my day any other way.

I'm alive with the animals.

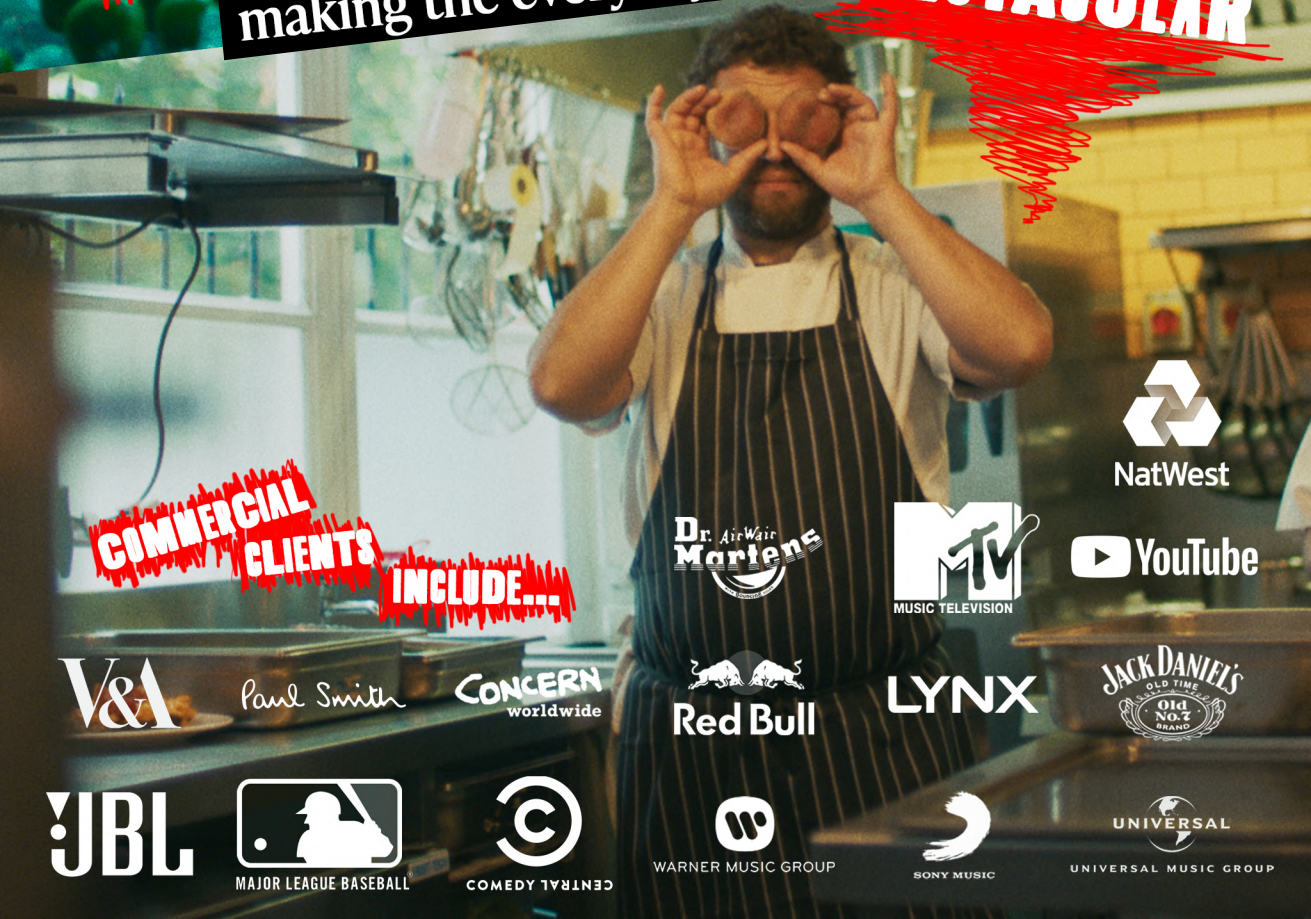

I say to my son, 'One day they will be yours.'

Henry's strong command of comedy, coupled with his ability to craft distinct aesthetics and wrap it all up with a touch of sentimentality have resulted in him carving out a sought-after niche in the commercial space.
His work floats effortlessly between the gritty and the glamorous...
